Iryna TUREVSKA,
1st year student of Philology, Faculty of Humanities and Pedagogy, National University of Life and Environmental Sciences of Ukraine
Oksana ZAKHUTSKA,
PhD (Doctor of Arts in Linguistics), Associate Professor of the Department of Foreign Philology and Translation, National University of Life and Environmental Sciences of Ukraine (Kyiv, Ukraine)

PHILOSOPHICAL ASPECTS OF LEARNING ENGLISH

The philosophical aspects of learning English – or any other language – encompass a range of considerations relating to the nature of language, knowledge, learning processes, identity, and societal influences. This area of inquiry can draw from various philosophical traditions, including pragmatism, existentialism, post-structuralism, and more.

One of the primary philosophical concerns in language learning is the nature of language itself. Questions arise about what language represents, how it shapes thought, and its role in communication. Ludwig Wittgenstein argued that the meaning of words is derived from their use in specific contexts, which contrasts with viewing language as a static system of rules. This emphasizes the practical use of language in everyday interactions.

Sapir-Whorf Hypothesis posits that the structure of a language affects its speakers' worldview and cognition. The implications of this hypothesis suggest that learning English can fundamentally alter how learners perceive and interact with reality.

Philosophically, the way individuals approach learning a language can reflect broader epistemological views – how knowledge is acquired, understood, and valued.

The constructivist approach, influenced by philosophers like John Dewey and Jean Piaget, posits that learners construct their own understanding and knowledge of the world through experiences and reflections. In language learning, this translates into immersive interactions and real-world communication.

Pragmatism emphasizes the practical consequences and applications of learning. In the context of learning English, this means focusing on using language effectively in real-world scenarios rather than merely memorizing grammar rules and vocabulary.

Language is deeply tied to identity formation. For many learners, acquiring English involves negotiating cultural identities and embracing or resisting aspects of various cultures.

Scholars like Homi Bhabha have argued that learning a dominant language (such as English) can signify complex relationships between colonizers and the colonized. This highlights issues of power, representation, and hybridity in language learning.

The process of learning a foreign language can influence how individuals view themselves. Identity could be shaped by the ability to communicate in English, leading to a sense of belonging or alienation.

Understanding the broader societal and cultural contexts in which English is taught and learned can reveal significant philosophical concerns.

As proposed by Paulo Freire, critical pedagogy encourages students to question and challenge domination, and the beliefs and practices that sustain it. This approach can be vital in English learning contexts, where learners develop critical awareness of language as a tool of social power.

Pierre Bourdieu's concept of cultural capital suggests that language learning can reflect and reinforce social structures. Mastering English can serve as a form of cultural capital, granting access to resources and opportunities within global contexts.

The ethical dimensions of language learning often arise in discussions about the implications of using a global lingua franca.

Language learning in a globalized context raises questions about equity, representation, and accessibility. The dominance of English can marginalize other languages and cultures, impacting language education policies and practices.

The philosophical aspects of learning English engage with profound questions about the nature of language, the epistemological processes involved in learning, personal and cultural identity, societal structures, and ethical considerations. By understanding these dimensions, educators can better formulate their teaching practices to enrich the language learning experience while considering the broader implications of language in society.

References

10. Bourdieu, P. (1991). Language and Symbolic Power. Harvard University Press.
11. Dewey, J. (1916). Democracy and Education: An Introduction to the Philosophy of Education. The Macmillan Company.
12. Dörnyei, Z. (2001). Teaching and Researching Motivation. Longman.
13. Whorf, B. L. (1956). Language, Thought, and Reality: Selected Writings of Benjamin Lee Whorf. MIT Press.

Міністерство освіти і науки України
Національний університет біоресурсів і природокористування України
Гуманітарно-педагогічний факультет
Кафедра іноземної філології і перекладу

СВІТ МОВ І МОВИ СВІТУ

МАТЕРІАЛИ
VII Міжнародної науково-практичної студентської конференції

17 квітня 2025 року

м. Київ

The Ministry of Education and Science of Ukraine
National University of Life and Environmental Sciences of Ukraine
Faculty of Humanities and Pedagogy
Department of Foreign Philology and Translation

WORLD OF LANGUAGES AND LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD

PROCEEDINGS of the
VII International scientific-practical student conference

April 17, 2025

Kyiv

УДК 811(08)

Світ мов і мови світу: зб. матеріалів VII Міжнародної наук.-практ. студ. конф., Київ, 17 квітня 2025 р. Київ, 2025. 263 с.

Збірник укладено за матеріалами VII Міжнародної науково-практичної студентської конференції «Світ мов і мови світу», що її провела кафедра іноземної філології і перекладу гуманітарно-педагогічного факультету Національного університету біоресурсів і природокористування України. Наповнення рубрик синхронізовано з основними напрямами роботи конференції.
Видання розраховано на науковців, викладачів, аспірантів, студентів.

The collection is compiled on materials of the VII International scientific-practical student conference «World of languages and languages of the world» held by the Department of Romance and Germanic Languages and Translation of the Faculty of Humanities and Pedagogy of the National University of Life and Environmental Sciences of Ukraine. All the materials are synchronized with the guidelines of the conference.
For scientists, lecturers, postgraduates, students.

Редакційна колегія:
Савицька І. М., канд. філос. наук, доц. (голова); Амеліна С. М., д-р пед. наук, проф; Харченко С. В., д-р філол. наук, проф.; Тепла О. М., канд. пед. наук, доц.

Схвалено до друку на засіданні вченої ради гуманітарно-педагогічного факультету, протокол № 10 від 16. 04. 2025

Тези подано в авторській редакції.
Автори тез відповідають за автентичність, достовірність викладеного матеріалу, за правильне цитування джерел, покликання на них.

Передруковувати опубліковані в збірнику матеріали дозволяється тільки за згодою авторів.

© НУБіП України, 2025
© Автори, 2025

.